

IS YOUR EMPLOYER THREATENING TO SACK YOU IF YOU REMAIN UNVACCINATED?

If we all do the same thing, the following will have an impact. However, the desired outcome depends entirely on every person under the same employer doing exactly the same thing. Do not immediately resign!!

Obviously, the thought of being vaccinated with the unproven and seemingly toxic and untested substances in the mandated job is enough to give anyone a great deal of stress. Go to your doctor and get a certificate to be off work due to extreme stress and nervous exhaustion. Trying to get an exemption under religious reasons etc. may no longer work. We have to play the game.

Hand in the certificate to your employer and make sure you get evidence that they have received it and read it. Do not resign, instead stay home (on pay, because of the circumstances) and leave it up to your demanding employer to sort out. This could take weeks. If we unite, they would be stuck with no workers and unable to operate. The weeks that follow could be enough time for us to reach the climax of this movie and see an end to the whole thing.

You are in a better position if you seem willing to comply. In order to reduce your extreme stress levels, ask your government employer to provide the following to help you comply more seamlessly:

1. Provide a letter stating that you will be covered by insurance should you have any adverse reactions to the 'vaccination'.
2. Ask for a government physician to complete the 'Physician's Warranty of Vaccine Safety' (available from us).

Depending on the level of harassment you could also provide the employer with the Cease and Desist letter (<https://commonlaw.earth/covid-downloads/>, quoting your nervous breakdown in the statement 'as a result' of the pressure your company and the government are putting you under.

We are all with you and understand the extreme stress you are experiencing. Keep in touch with your groups, including the main Telegram group: Sunshine Coast Common Law Assembly.
